Charles P. Ecclestone submmitted a plan of the extension of Spruce street, from Park to Narragansett aveand asked the council to accept the street, so that Mr. Ecclestone, who opened the street, might work with the town's representatives in providing for the care of surface water and for the future improvement of the street. Mr. Ecclestone did not have the deeds of the street ready for conveyance to the town, therefore action was deferred to the special meeting of the town council, which will be held Wednesmay evening to count the liquor license vote. Mr. Ecclestone was anxious that the work be carried on while weather conditions permitted. The council gave tacit approval of the plans submit-

Agreement reached by the highway committee and the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co., under authority of action taken by town meeting regarding disposition of a part of the town farm, was approved by the council. For about 410 square rods of unimproved land along the line of the railroad through the town farm. the railroad company will deed to the town of Westerly a strip of land in Railroad avenue, 800 feet in length and ten feet in width, for the widening and improvement of the avenue in exchange for the land at the town farm. For the highway committee it was further reported that estimates had been received for paving the Westerly section of the Broad street bridge, to compare with that on the Pawcatuck

The exita paving at the junction of Canal street and Railroad avenue and the general work relative to widening the latter, plainly showed that the money was not available. It was the general expression that the work in the vicinity of the railway station be completed before any work of like nature be commenced.
